

“DGCD has once again demonstrated that they would like to keep Woodward as a client by providing a timely service, doing whatever is necessary to get the job done according to our project goals. This is appreciated!”

– Tim Harper – Project Engineer, Woodward Governor Company, Ft. Collins, CO.

Woodward Governor Company has a tightly run development organization that needs collaborative, precise design work from an outsourced organization that wants a long term relationship

DGCD provides:

- Consistent, high-quality design resources who are willing to be part of the Woodward team
- Designers with excellent technical and interpersonal skills
- Designers available when Woodward designers are fully utilized
- Industry leading layout of tight, complicated boards with a lot of analog design
- Project management of layout designs that includes clear communication
- Timely project updates

Woodward, in Ft. Collins, Colorado, is a company with a long tradition of development. In the changing economy they have looked for new, effective working models.

Woodward has had a recent need to run their development on tight internal resources. They also need to maintain their high standards for workmanship. Outsourcing has become a reality, but it must be outsourcing that fits within the Woodward team and culture of success.

DGCD provides Woodward with highly collaborative layout design help at the same level of quality as they expect internally.

Woodward engineers visit with DGCD designers to maintain the feel of their design work. The DGCD team has quickly learned Woodward’s particular design style. This allows DGCD to provide an outsourced service that fits seamlessly into a development environment with years of methodology and success. This teamwork has developed into an efficient design process, and a cost-effective solution for the design lab.
